The screenshot shows the homepage of the Bridge Preservation Blog. At the top, there is a header with the TSP-2 logo (Transportation System Preservation Technical Services Program) and the AASHTO logo (The Voice of Transportation). The main title is "Bridge Preservation Blog" with the tagline "A Conversation About Bridge Preservation". Below the header is a navigation bar with links for "Home", "Subscribe/Unsubscribe", and "Back to TSP2".

The main content area features a breadcrumb trail: "Home > TRB News Profiles – Larry Galehouse, National Center for Pavement Preservation (NCPP)". The article title is "TRB News Profiles – Larry Galehouse, National Center for Pavement Preservation (NCPP)". It is dated "Posted on April 3, 2015 by John O'Doherty — No Comments". The article is from "TR News, January – February 2015, Number 296".

On the left side of the article is a portrait of Larry Galehouse. To the right of the portrait is a quote: "Our highway infrastructure took decades and generations of Americans to build and is simply too valuable to be left to languish." Below the quote is a paragraph of text: "An early champion for infrastructure preservation, Larry Galehouse managed maintenance programs at the Michigan Department of Transportation (DOT) long before starting the National Center for Pavement Preservation (NCPP). In the 1990s he developed guidelines, specifications, and new processes for Michigan DOT's Capital Preventive Maintenance Program, a model used for similar programs nationwide to extend highway pavement life. He also..."

On the right side of the page, there is a search bar with the text "search here ..." and a "Go" button. Below the search bar is a "Recent Posts" section with a list of four articles:
